

Shanghai Qizhong Residential Community

Shanghai Province, China
Competition Entry, April 2005

Concept Designer
(Club House Architectural Design, Urban Design)

This design presents two alternate visions for a residential community: one that maximizes public space, while the other creates the largest allowable lots. Both schemes create a community that fits the current taste for western-style housing, while attuning itself to those concerns that are more important to Chinese buyers: sun orientation, security, water features in the landscape, and an ample club house.

